The game ended in a tie 44 all and it was necessary to continue the play five minutes to decide, Campbell scoring another field goal during that time which was sure fast and furious.

Several boys have been about the new grammar school doing considerable damage in their pastime which has already gone too far. Some of these boys are known and should be deprecations continue, steps will be taken toward correction. Parents have a responsibility which does not cease as soon as boys are out of the house.

Banquet Well Attended

The annual banquet of the Campbell Improvement Club was a gastronomic and social success and the Ladies Aid are about $50 the better off for the undertaking. The ladies deserve much praise for the able manner in which they served the 160 hungry feasters.

The business meeting, which has formerly been held while still at the tables, was held in the auditorium of the church because of the large attendance.

S. G. Rodeck, President of the Club, called the meeting to order, and gave a concise resume of the work accomplished by the Club the past year, and thanked the committees for the loyal way in which they had supported him in his work.

The new street lights have been secured, the rural mail route retained, the celebration of Old Settlers' Day, street improvements, and the erection of our new $20,000 modern grammar school have all been obtained largely thru the activities of the Improvement Club and its committees.

The matter of election of officers elicited some very complimentary remarks on the efficiency of the present corps, and altho President Rodeck made an earnest plea for his retirement, all officers were reelected without a "no" vote. One enthusiastic supporter dared a "no" (who, by the way, were all members of the officers' families) to stand but the bluff held and all were pleased.

The officers are: President, S. G. Rodeck; Vice-president, G. S. Robson; Secretary, F. S. Newcomb; Treasurer, R. G. Archibald.

Manager T. H. Reed of San Jose gave the principal address of the evening on the value of Improvement Clubs and the improvement of individuals, complimenting Campbell on its club and accomplishments. By many of his stories he led to the idea of community improvement by individual sacrifice and constant application.

Attorney L. D. Bohnett gave a very fair exposition of the Electric and jitney controversy showing that the community interest is the chief consideration and such competitors should be placed on an equal and fair basis. In showing a preference the benefit should be given the concern that is of most benefit to the community.

I. W. Snow spoke briefly on the community spirit as evidenced in the co-operation between schools and parents, pointing out that often the pupil's progress is not entirely the fault of the school or the pupil. Communities should watch for legislation that would benefit or harm the schools with the idea of co-operation with legislators. The musical numbers given by the mixed chorus and male quartet were greatly appreciated by the guests who called for several encores.

The next regular meeting of the Club will be held at the Library Thursday evening, February 1. The various standing committees will be appointed at this time and some very important matters are to be discussed. A large attendance is expected.

LOVE NOT ENOUGH

MONEY CALLED POWERFUL AID TO HAPPY MARRIAGE.

Writer of Opinion That the French System of Providing Wives With Dowries Has Much to Recommend It.

It is said that because of the scarcity of money in France the dot system is slowly dying out. The American parent has ever laughed to scorn the venerable French custom of supplying the bride with a dowry to bring to her husband on her wedding day. A dotless maiden in French countries remains single. In many parts of upper Canada this is still true, and I have known American girls who married into French families in Montreal and Quebec to secure a substantial dot from their parents before taking the matrimonial leap. Otherwise their standing with the people who are to be their future friends is decidedly insecure, a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger says.

All of which proves that the French people, with their usual intuitive quickness, realize what Americans hesitate to acknowledge—that money is a powerful aid to a happy marriage. An American girl is not expected to bring her husband a dowry; but let me see the bridegroom who refuses a fat check from dad if he thrusts it upon the blushing pair.

I do not mean to say that the modern man and maid make it a practice to get all out of father that they can; because, even if there were no father and the girl happened to be one of the working class whose dot depends entirely upon her slender savings, they would still marry, and perhaps be happy forever after.

But if John can't feather his little nest with Sheraton furniture and vary his daily bread with plenty of cake, it won't do any harm to let him remain in single blessedness until he can.

The French put a money value on marriage. They fall in love after their respective parents have arranged the match. The young people begin to call each other by their first names after they are husband and wife. I remember staying with a French family several years ago. The head of the house was scandalized by the familiarity with which the American girls and men called each other by their first names.

We are pleased to call our American marriage system marriage for love. And probably it is. But the appalling number of divorces in the United States is an awful reflection on the constancy of American lovers. The sentimental may sentimentalize and the sob sisters sob, but to my mind marriage for love alone, with no visible means of support, is as hopeless as Don Quixote fighting the windmills. One might as well attempt to swim Niagara Falls, for the continuous strain of making ends meet is as relentless as the tons of water rushing over the cataract.

The happiness of French marriages is well known. The dot system works out admirably. Girls whose dots are large get husbands in their own class, those who have no dots get to work and earn them. And Jacques sits back nonchalantly and twirls his mustache until the lady of his heart makes what he considers a dowry suitable to his place in society. This sounds smug and self-satisfied, and so it is; but such is the custom of the country. The end justifies the means; the French bourgeoisie are the happiest people on the face of the earth.

"Money makes the mare go," especially the matrimonial mare. She gallops when the driver's pockets jingle, but her tread is slow and dragging when love alone points the way. I wonder if the abolition of the dot system will accomplish its object? Will France be any more populous because marriage be easier? I doubt it.

One-Step Not New.

If you've been doing the one-step under the impression you're being modern, forget it and go to learning the minut or some other reasonably up-to-date dance—take it on the word of James E. Cogan of Washington. Mr. Cogan, who is here on a visit told Broadway he had danced the one-step as far back as 35 years ago—and, in fact, had invented it himself. The other night Cogan strolled down the great white way to renew memories of the city and chance led him into a big restaurant along the Rialto, where, after a few minutes of observation he was persuaded to try his hand—that is, feet, of course—at a dance. What was his surprise to find he could not only do the one-step, but could do it as well as any of those on the floor. And then he discovered the one-step was really not new at all. "I danced that as far back as forty years ago," he declared. "In fact, I invented it." Wherefore, Mr. Dancer, what do you mean, modernism?—New York Correspondence Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The Venice of Mexico

WHEN peace once more broods over Mexico and the "See-America-First" campaign is made to embrace the wonderful scenic beauties of the southern republic, one of the most popular resorts for tourists will probably be "The Venice of the Valley," thus described in a communication from Walter Hough to the National Geographic society:

"One of the pleasurable experiences among those that delight the traveler in Mexico is a visit to the home of the Aztec lake dwellers. Much of the charm of the great Valley of Mexico, where they live, is due to the stretches of water among the trees and verdant fields in a landscape framed in beautiful mountains and bathed with clear, cool air of heaven.

"Their lakes—Texcoco, Xochimilco, Zumpango, and Chalco—do not reveal themselves except from the high mountains encircling the valley. They are shallow bodies of water in the midst of extensive marshes, unapproachable and lacking the effect of our lakes with their definite shorelines. For this reason they have never been highways of civilized commerce, nor has navigation flourished in their shallow waters; but they were from the very hindrances destined to be jealous mothers of ancient and remarkable states, whose people, protected in the that he is on a journey to see the lake dwellers in their primitive homes. Tardily then, the barge comes into the clear pool in front of the medieval toll-gate fortress, where all shipping must go under a low bridge and where the old-time toll collector, armed with a pike, could threaten the recalcitrant without much effort.

Busy Scene on the Canal.

"Beyond the gateway begin more vistas of a new world! On this canal, bordered with trees and spanned with quaint bridges, is a perfect stream of craft, from the slender dugout chaloupe to the square-bowed flatboat, hurrying on with everything to feed, repair, and adorn the great city. Freight is of all descriptions, but one looks curiously on the small bundles of grass and other green forage for animal feed, the pulque barrels, vegetables and flowers. The Indian boatmen, clad in white cotton shirt and trousers, are working with a will, sometimes wading in the canal and drawing the heavy-laden boats after them; and, alas! returning to their paradise, a woman piloting her husband who is the worse for pulque.

"Flotsam and jetsam in the canal are vagrant bulbs and flowers of water hyacinth, a wicked, beautiful plant whose reproductivity makes men work to keep it down, but here it has met its match and is made to be useful, for fens, dug out canals and developed an indigenous commerce and transportation to the fullest extent.

"Long before Cortez came, the Indians of the valley worked in the boggy lake lands and dug canals hither and thither—main canals between the lakes and to the great city of Tenochtitlan and smaller canals between the fields. Through this maze of waterways, then as now, they sent their boats and in the fens built their thatched houses.

"In the Field of Flowers."

"Pere Sahagun, the Franciscan, records that 'the City of Mexico is like another Venice and the people themselves are comparable to the Venetians in urbanity and savoirfaire.' This was written in the sixteenth century, but in the lapse of several hundred years the city's wonderful water environment has become dry ground, and the seeker for lake dwellers will have to look farther afield in the entrancing valley of the sky.

"The way to the present Aztec Venice, which bears the name of Xochimilco 'in the field of flowers,' is through one of these ancient canals—a prehistoric water road from Tenochtitlan to the capital and seat of one of the group of seven Aztec tribes which long ago came from remote Aztlan to the rich Valley of Mexico.

"The life on the canal, vivid and picturesque, is as striking now as it was then; it may even be suspected that the change from that time to this has not been very great. It is hard to get a start to the land of the fens in more ways than one—the negotiations for passage in a barge with boatmen who display the characteristics of that tribe known the world over; and the conflicting claims also of all the costumes, incidents, shipping and so forth. Of the boiling, squirming kaleidoscope of canal and shore population on its multitudinous quests bewilders the beholder and make him forget the Aztecs throw great masses of it upon a strip of bog to the thickness of a foot or more. The water hyacinth is provided with large cellular floats, a natural provision for its dissemination, which has made it an obstruction to navigation in some of our Southern rivers.

"Upon this bed of floats the natives spread a layer of muck, dredged from the bottom of the canals. Perhaps before the plant floats have decayed these gardens may drift away should the water rise. Even now on portions of the lake square miles of vegetation cover the surface like the 'sudd' of the Nile, and the canal roads have to be staked at the sides to keep them from disappearing.

"The term 'floating gardens' was properly applied by the early historians of Mexico to masses of water weeds covered with a thin layer of soil, employed by the Mexicans at a period when the fluctuating waters prevented the formation of permanent chinampas, and so in the New World the Indians repeated the famed gardens of the lake of Cashmere.

"The Xochimilcos are expert gardeners and assiduous at their work. Most of their plants are started in seedbeds, from which they are transplanted to the chinampas, and it is strange to see boatloads of corn sprouts brought to be planted in this manner. Curiously enough, these morass gardens sometimes require irrigation, which is accomplished by throwing the water from the canal with a wooden scoop.

"It cannot be said that the Xochimilcan man has an open and ingenious countenance, but it shows force of character and lights up quickly in response to kindness and recognition. The young women have round, often ruddy, but rather expressionless faces; the children are pretty and the older women are better preserved than the women of the Pueblos of the Southwestern United States."

DOG FULL OF TRICKS

BUT THIS PUP IS AN ELECTRICAL AFFAIR.

Invented by John Hays Hammond and B. F. Meister—Controlled by Light Rays It Will Do Many Interesting Things.

In the Popular Science Monthly appears an interesting article by B. F. Meister, describing the famous electric dog which was invented by the author in collaboration with John Hays Hammond, Jr. In speaking of the tricks of his mechanical pet, the writer says:

"The electrical dog, which John Hays Hammond, Jr., and I designed, has no tail to wag and no voice to bark with, but he can follow a person about in a most surprising way.

"Like the sunflower that follows the sun in its path across the heavens, my first apparatus was capable of turning itself only to face the object that stimulated it. But a great difficulty had to be overcome. The stimulant was light, and sometimes the dog saw too much light, so that he behaved occasionally in an astonishingly erratic manner.

"Just how grave a difficulty this disobedience really it, was illustrated by an amusing incident during a demonstration at a Chicago theater.

"The dog was ready to spring into action, but when the stage was lighted, instead of obeying the flashlight held in my hands, the dog insisted on paying attention to a very alluring but not thickly clothed young woman painted on the scenery near by. It seems that the reflected light from the painting was sufficiently brilliant to compete with the flashlight and to cause the dog to creep to this fairer attraction with a directness which was almost uncanny.

"To all practical intents and purposes, the electrical dog is a dead dog until excited by an external light ray—usually a pocket flashlight, held in the hand. Fastened to the front of a squat, oblong box on three rollerlike wheels, are two great lenses, the eyes through which the dog receives his intelligence. Behind the lenses are two extremely sensitive cells containing the black, waxlike selenium. A peculiarity of selenium is that it is sensitive only to light rays; or, to put the facts a little more technically selenium is a nonconductor of electric currents until it is struck by light, when it becomes a conductor. Located behind the selenium eyes is an arrangement of relays, batteries, magnets and a motor. When a beam of light strikes one of the selenium cells, it causes a relay to be operated which, in turn, causes current to flow through one of the magnets controlling the steering wheel. The driving motor starts and the dog is under way. Shift the light so it strikes the other selenium eye and the dog moves in the other direction. In other words, in whichever direction the light travels there also will the dog go. By reversing a switch on the outside of the box, the dog can be made to back away from the light. Illuminating both cells equally causes the dog to move in a straight line.

VAST WEALTH OF ABYSSINIA

Country Has Remarkable Agricultural Resources and Is Developing Rapidly Under Native Rulers.

Ouizero Zeodita, daughter of the late Menelik, has been proclaimed empress of Abyssinia, says the Christian Herald. She is forty years old. The empress succeeds Emperor Lidj Jeassu, who has been deposed. Abyssinia is one of the most interesting nations of the earth. It is the Switzerland of Africa. It is one-third larger than Great Britain. It occupies the mountainous regions of the valley of the Upper Nile, extending to the lower end of the Red Sea and over the watershed toward the Indian ocean. The land is fertile, yielding the products of all climates, some of them three crops a year. Bananas, dates, sugar, cotton, grapes, oranges, lemons and coffee all flourish, and on the tablelands hay, oats and barley are cultivated. Abyssinia is the only independent native state in Africa. It has fine public improvements and conveniences of civilized living. Abyssinia is the Ethiopia of ancient history.

Brown-Tail Moth Gone.

Success seems to have attended the efforts to exterminate the brown-tail moth, which has for years been the object of a warfare by the United States government as well as the states which have been ravaged by this pest. Light-houses along the coast of Connecticut and Long Island have been examined, but no migrating moths have been found. Fewer moths have been found on trains coming from infested regions during the season when the moths are flying than in any previous year. Hence this serious pest is believed not to be spreading, if indeed not actually in its decline.

New and Novel Device.

A big American steel company has adopted a novel device for unloading pig-iron from the holds of freight vessels. In place of stavedores, the company uses powerful magnets each of which has a lifting power of 4,500 pounds. Three such magnets were recently used in unloading a vessel, and made a record of unloading 4,000,000 pounds in ten hours, at a cost of $100. This represents a saving of $500, it is said, over the cost of handling by long-shoremen.

In War-Bound Holland

A PLEASANT picture of Dutch life is drawn by Mrs. Florence Craig Albrecht in a paper prepared for the National Geographic society, in which she describes the tidy housewife, shows how the little girls exactly duplicate their mothers in dress and the little boys must be appareled exactly like their fathers or be hopelessly out of fashion.

The writer shows how formerly everyone of Holland's many islands and most of her many towns had their own particular and distinctive dress, and how, even to this day, in a little country less than a fourth as big as New York, one may still recognize the places from which many people come by their costumes. She draws a picture of the Walcheren dames who drive to the butter market at Middelburg, descend from their wagons and chaises with much shaking of voluminous skirts and aprons, much patting of their comely Dutch caps, and much smoothing of wrinkled laces.

"When the farmer's wife comes to town she replaces her workaday apron with one of black sateen," says Mrs. Albrecht, "almost as long and full as her skirts; it is close shirred at the waist in many fine, even rows. Her bodice is black likewise; but a shield-shaped tucker is frequently of gay colors, and the sleeve is but an apology, ending far above the elbow in a broad and very tight black velvet band."

With all their demureness of dress and bearing, the Dutch girls are fond of banter and fun. Ask one her name and she is likely to answer that her mother can tell it better than she, as "Mother knew it first." She has no objection to your knowing her name but she is a great tease at all times, says the writer.

principal belligerents brings a world's sympathy for the brave little kingdom and her people, who are receiving so many of the ills of war with little chance of ever sharing its benefits. In this connection an extract of a study prepared by William Wisner Chapin for the National Geographic society is full of interest.

Here is a section of the globe which was almost entirely overlooked by nature in the original distribution of iron and other metals, of coal, stone and wood. In fact, to a great extent even the land itself was wrong side up at the start. The existence of Petrograd and Venice is regarded with wonder, although they are cities covering small areas. What, then, can be said of Holland, where the land, made and reclaimed from the sea, spreads out in great fertile plains and meadows thousands of square miles in extent.

The wind has furnished the power in the battle through which the land was wrested from the sea; while even the water, against which Dutch ingenuity so long and successfully plotted, has repeatedly obeyed their summons and come to the rescue of besieged cities, overwhelming their enemies and preserving the nation.

One-quarter of the whole kingdom lies below the normal level of the sea while 30 per cent of all the territory of the country would be submerged but for the dikes.

For a time Holland was one of the three leading powers of Europe. Warfare has marked the existence of her sturdy people from the first. For when not fighting with swords they were battling with picks and shovels.

The Hague's Fine Forest.

Mr. Chapin tells how, although the country is largely treeless, one of the finest forests in the world is to be found at The Hague, and describes the affection of the people for it, often saving it in time of stress by sacrifices and voluntary offerings. He reminds us that Amsterdam is built on 90 islands, connected by more than 350 bridges; that the royal exchange is built on 34,000 piles and the royal palace on nearly 14,000. He says that 12,000 of Amsterdam's Jewish population are engaged in diamond polishing, and that Holland deserves her reputation of being the most liberal in charities, of all the European countries.

On the front facade of many houses, hanging between the windows, are mirrors, placed at such an angle that those inside, without being seen, may view the street in any direction, including the front door and anyone seeking entrance. The home life of many of the people is said to be so quiet, that, wishing to see all that is going on about them, they employ these "spies."

The Dutch differ from the Chinese in announcing to the world the birth of children only in the article displayed. The Chinamen hang a piece of ginger over the main entrance to the house, while the Hollanders indicate the event by a piece of lace, combining with the lace a pink background for a boy and tinsel for a girl.

The orphans of some of the cities of Holland are quite conspicuous, and especially so when seen in the streets of Amsterdam, dressed in what might be termed half-and-half clothing. The east half of a boy's coat, including the sleeve, is red, and the west half black. The dresses of the girls are topped off in a similar manner.

Mr. Chapin states that Holland, one-fourth as big as New York state ranks third among the countries of the world in the number of its colonials, and fifth in the area of its colonies; that she rules six times as many colonials as home people; and governs an outside area 15 times as large as her home domains; that if France were as densely populated as Holland she would have 96,000,000 people instead of 39,000,000. In spite of this lack of elbow room her imports amount to $203.46 per capita to our $18.41, and her exports $203.09 to our $24.66.

MOTHERHOOD WOMAN'S JOY

Suggestions to Childless Women.

Among the virtues of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the ability to correct sterility in the cases of many women. This fact is well established as evidenced by the following letter and hundreds of others we have published in these columns.

Poplar Bluff, Mo.—"I want other women to know what a blessing Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been to me. We had always wanted a baby in our home but I was in poor health and not able to do my work. My mother and husband both urged me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, my health improved and I am now the mother of a fine baby girl and do all my own house work."

Mrs. ALLIA B. TIMMONS, 216 Almond St., Poplar Bluff, Mo.

In many other homes, once childless, there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice—it will be confidential and helpful.

Stung.

To be attacked by a swarm of bees in an unsuspecting moment is not a very pleasant situation, but it was a sensation recently experienced by Harold Lockwood, May Allison and their supporting cast, while filming a scene in "Big Tremaine," that thrilling Metro production. One of the property boys stumbled over a beehive, which was located about 20 feet from where the players were working.

A minute later they were all covered with bees, and ran in all directions for safety. When Harold Lockwood stopped his Marathon he was exactly three blocks from the location, and right in back of him was May Allison, who was fighting the bees with a huge bouquet of flowers, and who, by the way, was the only one of the party to escape being stung. When they got back to the location work was called off by Director Henry Otto, while the players plastered their smarting lumps with mud.

Guns the Most Deadly.

Guns are the most deadly of all, according to the mortality census of the United States for 1915, figures from which have just been made public. The astonishing fact is brought out that firearms caused deaths to the number of 7,904 in the registration area, corresponding to a rate of 11.9 per 100,000. This beats the railroads, with 6,652 deaths in the same area due to accidents and injuries; it beats by more than five times the number of deaths caused by street cars—1,555; and is more than double those resulting from automobile accidents—3,978.

Some Simple Pudding Sauces.

The best of puddings may be ruined by an insipid ill-chosen sauce. Hard sauces are to be served on hot puddings. The following are a few which may be varied by different flavors. Warm but do not melt a half cupful of butter and add gradually a cupful of pulverized sugar, then fold in the whites of two eggs beaten stiff. Flavor with the juice of a lemon and two teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Pack in a mold and keep cool until ready to serve with the pudding. A good hard sauce is made by using the same amount of sugar with the white of one egg and half the butter.

Mash a pound of maple sugar, add a half cupful of water and boil until it threads. Pour this in a thin stream on the well-beaten whites of two eggs, stirring and beating the mixture briskly all the time. Add a half cupful of whipped cream just at the last.

Fluffy Sauce.

Scald a cupful of milk in a double boiler. Stir in a level tablespoonful of cornstarch, wet with a little milk. Cook ten minutes, stirring often. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one cupful of powdered sugar until very light. Add a teaspoonful of vanilla and a pinch of salt, then beat this into the thickened milk which has been cooled. Beat the white of an egg dry and whip it into the sauce until light and fluffy.

Fruit Sauce.

Take a cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of cornstarch or two of flour, mix well with the sugar and add a half cupful of boiling water, cook until smooth and the starch or flour is thoroughly cooked, then add a cupful of any kind of canned-fruit juice, or if that is not at hand add two or three tablespoonfuls of mild vinegar, more hot water and a tablespoonful of butter with a grating of nutmeg and a pinch of salt. This sauce is especially nice with cottage pudding, a pudding made like a plain cake.

To make a most delicious sauce which is neither a hard or soft one use two tablespoonfuls of softened butter and a cupful of powdered sugar and when well creamed fold in a half cupful of whipped cream. Flavor to taste.

The Speed of Animals

According to the naturalists, no animal is known to have exceeded the speed attained by the famous racehorse Sysonby. Instantaneous photographs show the full length of one complete stride as about 26 feet. In the stride of the fastest racers the hind quarters and limbs are raised considerably higher than the shoulders, and from this relatively great height brought downward and forward, widely separated from each other, as a sportsman says, "to avoid striking the forelegs."

The hare, which is hunted with fast hounds has not in reality the speed of the dog. The dog, on the other hand, does not attain the speed of the horse. The giraffe is said to run at the rate of 15 meters per second under the most favorable conditions. The elephant, going at the rate of two yards a second, carries a weight approximating that carried by six horses.

They Just Want to Know

The inquisitiveness of children which, as Oliver Wendell Holmes says, makes them the terror and despair of their parents, has no object save the craving to know about things, so Dr. J. Mitchell Bruce, consulting physician to Charing Cross hospital, London, told his students at the opening of the winter session. The small boy is hungry for knowledge for its own sake, just as he eats because he is hungry, without any notion of the physiological use of food.

CALOMEL TODAY, SICK TOMORROW

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

Opposed Decimal System.

Among the most determined opponents of the decimal system was, of course, Herbert Spencer. Some of his most eloquent pamphlets were written against it. So determined, indeed, was he that nothing he could do to prevent its introduction should be left undone, that he made a permanent provision for renewing the opposition wherever it might be necessary. He left instructions that his famous pamphlets should be at once reprinted, whenever there was any serious possibility of the authorities being so far "led astray" as to contemplate the adoption of the system. His executors are, no doubt, taking note of the present renewed agitation.

If He Was King of New York.

A modest sculptor, telling a dining club what he would do to New York if he were king, says he "would demolish all houses between Sixth and Seventh avenues, Washington square and Westchester county, then build a great boulevard and erect at each end tremendous domed buildings as halls of fame for the illustrious dead of the nation."

It is difficult to prophesy what the remainder of the population would do in such an event, but it is likely that the sovereign's entourage would soon sing "God Save the King from the Taxpayers" and make an early reservation for a place in one of the "tremendous domed buildings."—New York Herald.

Giant Telescope Students' Work.

The University of Nebraska will this year begin to use its new telescope, which has just been completed after seven years' work. This instrument has been constructed entirely by the students in the university. Over 320 patterns were drafted for the different parts and each was made in the university shops. The finished structure is 18 feet long and 26 feet wide. It is equipped with a fine 12-inch lens, which was donated. The entire telescope represents a value of over $7,500, but the work of the students reduced the expenditure over one-half.

Colds and How to Avoid Them.

By MISS LOULA E. KENNEDY
Of Kansas State Agricultural College.

A cold is a germ disease and its development is favored by undue exposure to cold, by fatigue, by improper sleep, and by overeating. One should keep away from the germs by avoiding direct contact with persons who are suffering with this disease and those who are careless about coughing and sneezing without using their handkerchiefs.

One must live hygienically in order to keep the body in good condition. Hygienic living means proper food, clothing, exercise, rest, plenty of fresh air, and good habits generally. When one is fatigued or worried, or when prolonged chilling or indigestion disturbs the system the vitality is lowered and the way is made easy for the development of the germ. Clothing should be neither too warm nor too cool. Too much clothing induces excessive perspiration, which eventually will cause chilling of the body.

It is advisable to harden oneself to cold, but care must be observed not to overdo the matter. Because a little hardening will do good it does not necessarily follow that more will do better. The temperature of the living room should never be kept so low as to chill the occupants. Special attention should be given to keep the air in this room moist, as the drying of the mucous linings of the air passages causes them to crack and allow germs to enter.

A cold may be contracted in spite of these preventive measures. Then the body must be given a chance to cure itself. This necessitates even more careful living. Drugs can only remove conditions standing in the way of nature's cure. They are all right if prescribed by a physician, but no drug is known to be an absolute cure for a cold.

Colds should never be neglected. "Only a cold" too often expresses the attitude. Colds pave the way for pneumonia and other serious diseases.

Queen Nathalie of Serbia, Missing Since War Began, Found Working in Hospital

The mystery of the whereabouts of ex-Queen Nathalie of Serbia, who disappeared at the outbreak of the war, was cleared up when she was discovered working as a common serving woman in a big hospital in Bordeaux. While investigating the medical service of Bordeaux, Jean de Bonnefont, a well-known Catholic journalist, who used to attend the court ceremonies in Belgrade during the reign of the last Obrenovitch, found the queen sweeping the hospital floors.

When the war began the queen, whose history is the most tragic court story known to Europe, placed her palace at Biarritz in the hands of a friend, princess Ghika, and ordered it converted into a military hospital.

"As for me," she added, "I am going to efface myself. The times are so tragic that those who were once rulers of men must aid them in all humility."

On the same evening Queen Nathalie, unattended, entrained for an unknown destination, and her suite had not heard a word of her since. In the hospital where Dr. Bonnefont found her she volunteered her services under the name of Nathalie Kechoko, her maiden name, and for the last two years has performed the meanest and most exhausting duties.

"When I last saw her at the Belgrade court," writes Dr. Bonnefont, "King Milan's widow wore a blazing diadem and looked a haughty and queenly beauty. She was attired in a purple velvet cloak lined with ermine. Now she wore brown Holland overalls instead of the purple cloak."

The wounded soldiers are totally ignorant of her identity. They speak gratefully of her "saintly goodness" and her untiring efforts to aid them.

At the queen's urgent request the exact location of the hospital is kept secret, as she intends working incognito until the end of the war.

The Whiners

I don't mind a man with a red-blooded kick
At a real or fanciful wrong;
I stand for the chap with the grinch if he's quick

To drop it when joy comes along;
I have praise for the fellow who says what he thinks,
Though his thoughts may not fit in with mine.

But spare me from having to mix with the ginks
Who go through this world with a whine.

I am waiting to listen to sinner or saint
Who is willing to fight for his rights,
And there's something sometimes in an honest complaint

That the soul of me really delights.
For kickers are useful and grooches are wise,
For their purpose is frequently fine,
But spare me from having to mix with the guys

Who go through this world with a whine.

AGREE TO DISCARD FOOTWEAR

Natives of the Golden State Have Formed a League Which is Somewhat Unconventional.

Harking back to the days when man roamed carelessly across green pastures unshackled by costly footwear; when cool, solid comfort met the naked foot at every step, and when corns and bunions were unheard of, four prominent Sacramentans have formed what is to be known as the Sacramento Barefoot league, says a correspondent.

There are four charter members of the league, all residents of Yardley avenue, and they are Dr. Robert E. Smith, James McCullough, L. O. Lumry and Steve Downey.

The league was organized in quite an unintentional way. Which of the four was the originator is unknown. But it is intimated that Doctor Smith, for several years advocate of the Coatsless Summer league for men, had something to do with it.

At any rate, the league has had several meetings. The requirements of the league are these: No member must be too modest to display his bare feet. He must be without pedal covering in attending meetings. He must be willing to, and enjoy, walking on his lawn before the assembled multitude, including his wife, unshod.

He must be willing to step into his neighbor's house in his bare feet and walk across his neighbor's hardwood floors as nonchalantly as though he were Pithcanthropus in the jungles. Several meetings of the league have been held at the homes of the various charter members of Yardley avenue. The meetings are preceded by a cool walk upon the lawn of the host. As the evening becomes cool and members retire to the host's drawing room and are entertained with phonograph selections.

Despite serious objections to the league on the part of the better halves in some of the homes, the organization has grown and is now reaching out for congenial spirits.

"Keep cool and comfortable and cure your corns," is the slogan of the league.

His Promise.

A Mobile man who was continually hard up had so many notes at the bank he could not leave town except on Sundays and holidays. He had a note falling due every banking day. He dropped into a bank one day and spoke genially to the president.

"I came in to fix up that little matter of mine," he said. "I'd like to renew it for a time."

The bank president had the note on his desk. He picked it up and studied it carefully. "Jim," he finally said, "I don't think this note is made out properly."

"Why not?" asked the alarmed borrower.

"It reads: 'I promise to pay'—not 'I promise to renew.'"—Saturday Evening Post.

Russian Coal Supply.

The total coal output of Russian mines in the year 1913 was 35,000,000 tons. The best coal in Russia—partly anthracite—is obtained in South Russia in the Donetz basin, and these mines and those of Poland give nine-tenths of the Russian supply. Even so, however, Russia does not produce enough coal for her own use; in 1913 the number of tons imported was 9,510,000, most of which was brought from England.

Drift From Country to City.

Some further statistics as to the drift of population in this country from the country to the city were presented in a recent census bureau report. Figures show that this drift has now covered a period of a century and a quarter, or from 1790 to the present time, 1790, being the year in which the first census of population was taken. Since that time the drift has been practically uninterrupted. In 1790 cities were extremely rare in this country. Only one had a population of more than 30,000. This was New York city, which had at that time 33,131 inhabitants. Next came Philadelphia, with 28,500, and then Boston, with 18,320. In the entire country there were only 3,929,214 people.—Literary Digest.

AN-URIC! The Newest Discovery in Chemistry.

This is a recent discovery of Doctor Pierce, who is head of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments at Dr. Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that there is no other eliminator of uric acid that can be compared to it. For these easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, it is simply wonderful how surely "An-uric" acts. The best of results are always obtained in cases of acute rheumatism in the joints, in gravel and gout, and invariably the pains and stiffness which so frequently and persistently accompany the disease rapidly disappear.

Go to your nearest drug store and simply ask for a 50-cent package of "An-uric" manufactured by Dr. Pierce, or even write Dr. Pierce for a free sample. If you suspect kidney or bladder trouble, send him a sample of your water and describe symptoms. Dr. Pierce's chemist will examine it, then Dr. Pierce will report to you without fee or charge.

NOTE—"An-uric" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid, and is a harmless but reliable chemical compound that may be safely given to children, but should be used only by grown-ups who actually wish to restore their kidneys to perfect health, by conscientiously using one box—or more in extreme cases—as "An-uric" (thanks to Doctor Pierce's achievement) is by far the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector obtainable.

A GREAT OFFER

If you will cut this out and send 3 dimes to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., you will receive a 1,000-page book, bound in handsome cloth, fully illustrated, all charges prepaid.

Growers Nominate Candidates

The growers of Campbell High school district met at the Coffee Club Saturday evening to nominate candidates for trustees for the Prune and Apricot Grower's association. E. K. Clendenning was elected president for the evening, and G. S. Robson, secretary.
The following names were put in nomination from which trustees were to be elected later: Hugh Hersman, J. J. Stanfield, Mark Grimes, T. S. Montgomery, George Merrill, Warren Hyde, A. N. Lantz, George W. Clendenning, J. S. Williams, Mason Lester, Frank Swift, E. K. Clendenning, J. H. Bone, Leonard Coates, Frank Babb, Dr. Huntley, Mr. Garner (Hollister), A. Kammerer, Frank Wilson (Sungvale), E. I. Price, S. E. Johnson.
A committee of two from each of the four school districts was appointed for the purpose of keeping in touch with the movement and calling meetings of the growers whenever necessary—Cambridge, A. N. Lantz, L. L. Woodard; Hamilton, Ed. Barker, F. K. Bartholomew; Campbell, F. M. Righter, B. O. Curry; San Tomas, Chas. Metler, second to be chosen later.

Jubilee Supper

The Congregational church will enjoy a Jubilee supper and social this (Friday) evening at 6 o'clock, the occasion being the liquidation of the Manse debt.
To follow the basket supper, for which the following articles are solicited, scalloped potatoes, pickles, jelly, apple sauce and ginger bread, a short, but interesting program is being arranged, to include the burning of the mortgage.
The Rev. Atkinson has written a song to be sung for the occasion.

Methodist Church Notes

The Sunday morning sermon will be on, "The High Cost of Worry"; and the evening subject will be, "Keeping Up Appearances."
S. S. at 9:45 a. m., and E. L. at 6:45 p. m.
The second number of the course of entertainments by the Epworth League will be a lecture by Rev. George W. White on, "The Black Napoleon," Feb. 9th, is the date, and we look for the same large attendance that we have had at all these entertainments. None will be disappointed who come to hear Dr. White in his famous lecture.

TO grant to, all men, the great privilege of thinking and to reserve the same right for myself.
To consider consideration one of the greatest of virtues.
To help others to help themselves, and to find my reward in seeing them do it.
To seek out and hug close to my heart a few real friends who understand, rather than play for popularity.
To think well of everyone—including myself.
To give to all work entrusted to me the very best that is in me, and never to be quite satisfied with my own efforts.
To keep my face to the light, and to laugh loudest and longest when about ready to cry.
To pin my faith to the gospel of human service and to do my level best to live long and be good—for something.
To never forget my friends, and to always forget my enemies.
To spend as much time as is possible each day in God's great out-of-doors, and to endeavor to read life's lessons from the pages of nature.
All of which, after being carefully reasoned out, seems to be good enough for all mankind.

Two Newspaper Men Chosen

OVER 200 young lady attendants of the University of Minnesota were asked as to choice of husbands and amount of salary their prospective slaves should have. When the answers were tabulated it was found that the physicians were the first choice of the girls, farmers second and business men third. The desired income was $1,642 a year. Two lone females selected newspaper men as their choice.—Exchange.
Well, we had two friends in the crowd, didn't we? Two out of two hundred—that's surely a sign of popularity with the women folks. They had evidently heard the old poem, "The Newspaper Man." We can't recall whose pen it came from but it ran something like this:

He seldom is handsome or matty,
And has none of the charms of a dude;
He courts us, then slights us and grieves us,
Sometimes is unbearably rude;
More often abstracted than chatty,
As much as he possibly can;
He kisses us, loves us and leaves us,
This perfidious Newspaper Man.
Our mothers, won't have him come calling,
He's no earthly good as a catch;
His morals, they say, are appalling,
His finances usually a match.
He's rollicking, careless and reckless,
Lives but for the hour that day;
He's dangerous, dubious, daring,
Not fit for a husband, they say.
But somehow we girls are forgetful,
Perhaps he but needs us the more;
Although he goes wrong in the living,
He knows the old world to its core.
So we pass the dude and the schemer,
Who lead in society's van,
And cherish the thinker and dreamer
Enshrined in the Newspaper Man.

The Rev. Geo. E. Atkinson is expected here this evening to attend the "Jubilee Social."
Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Shelley and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hyde spent the weekend at Seabright.
J. C. Harris and J. M. Harris left today for the Big Sur country taking an auto trip thru the Monterey county mountains for two weeks.
Mr. P. Annett and Miss Myrtle Annett accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Neff and Miss Minnie Neff visited the Rebekah Lodge at Palo Alto Wednesday evening.
The Pacific Gas & Electric Co. have placed poles and are wiring for lights for the Jas. Burns house on So. Third st., and for the Grammar school on So. Fourth st.
Miss Luella Thompson underwent another operation Tuesday, the third inside a year. She was resting and recovering from the effects of the anaesthetic as well as could be expected at last report.

An Educational campaign is to be instituted for the purpose of instructing voters as to the advisability of issuing bonds for the construction of roads within the county. It is shown that by a $2,000,000 road bond the taxpayers would be saved quite a material sum in assessment over the present system.
Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Leavenworth of Monterey have purchased of Will E. Wright the business property adjoining the Bank's property and will arrive by auto truck within a few days to take possession of their newly acquired place. Mr. and Mrs. Leavenworth are held in high esteem by their many friends in Pacific Grove and what is the loss of that place is surely our gain and Campbell extends to them a hearty welcome. It is understood that there is some little hitch between Mr. Wright and the Wells Fargo people as to the compensation for his services and it is not as yet definitely settled as to that agency as mentioned in last week's Press.

Home Made Cars

Announcement that the Southern Pacific Company has adopted the plan of building all its wooden freight cars, such as box and flat cars, at its own shops and will make them from lumber produced along its lines, was made by President William Sproule, who returned from New York and other Eastern cities.
"The plan" said Mr. Sproule, "is in furtherance of our policy to favor home industry and will provide a good market for a great deal of western timber. The construction will be done principally at our Sacramento shops. So our local payrolls and those of the mills supplying us will be increased. We plan to build as soon as possible 2,000 box, 450 stock and 500 flat cars. These, added to the 2,700 new refrigerator cars just ordered by the Pacific Fruit Express Company, of which about 1000 will be built in California, will give us 5650 new freight cars for the coming season—enough to ward off the hardships through shortages of railroad equipment experienced this season, provided we can get our cars returned to us after they are unloaded at destination. The Southern Pacific as you know is half owner of the Pacific Fruit Express."
